A telegram was received here Tuesday morning announcing the death of the night before of Mrs. May Hink, nee Whitworth, at her home in Hartington, Nebraska. The remains will be brought here for interment and the funeral will occur from the Episcopal church Thursday afternoon at two o'clock. The family have the sympathy of many friends in their bereavement.

Carroll Trammell loaded up on booze last Wednesday and in the afternoon walked into Schultz's saloon. He wanted more whiskey but was refused on the theory that he had already had too much. This made Carroll indignant and he started to clean out the place. The city marshal was sent for and took him to jail, where he remained until next day when he paid his fine and was released.

An unknown negro, about twenty-four years of age, was knocked off the track and killed by No. 7, the south-bound fast mail, Tuesday morning. A party of bright young people came over from Arcadia Valley last Wednesday on an outing and to see our progressive town, of whose beauty they had heard their escort, Mr. Jake Lopez discourse so eloquently. Jack Elbrecht, Clarence Peper and Jake Lopez.—Farmington Times.

The REGISTER has been the recipient of two baskets of vegetables during the past week, grown at "The Maples" and "The Valley Home," respectively. The epitomized good, wholesome country living—cabbages, roasting-ears, tomatoes, green peppers, and egg plants. All were of the finest varieties and of the most perfect growth in beauty, size and excellence. Bro. Kretschmar gathered those from "The Maples," while I owe it to the thoughtful kindness of Mrs. Wm. H. Thomson that I have been enabled to sample the produce of "The Home."

Last Monday several soldiers hired Henry and Carroll Trammell with a mule team to transport them to the neighboring city of Middlebrook. Arthur Spauld was also one of the party. A general drunk and the usual row resulted, in the course of which it is alleged Spauld drew a "gun" on one of the soldiers. In the fracas, which seems to have been "a free for all," Henry Trammell had his face bruised, but no serious damage was done. When the party returned to Ironton they proceeded to do some more drinking, during which the marshal ran in upon them and arrested Spauld for carrying concealed weapons and also on the charge of assault with intent to kill. The latter charge was afterward withdrawn, but the prisoner was held to the circuit court on the other under bond of $500, and he was taken to jail in default of giving it. Two of the soldiers also were jailed over night, but released next morning.

On July 5th New London, in Ralls county, Mo., was shocked by the death of Mrs. Jones Watson, the wife of a prominent physician of the town. The doctor and his wife had gone out driving, the horse became frightened and ran away. The doctor was found in an apparently unconscious condition on a bridge across the river, and the dead body of his wife was found in the water below. After the burial of the woman relatives of the wife grew suspicious as to the circumstances surrounding her death and have started an investigation. The fact that the dead woman had $30,000 life insurance in favor of her husband has given color to the story. The investigation has proceeded far enough to develop "another woman" in the case, and the only local interest attaching to the affair is that a recent issue of the Hannibal Journal says that this woman left St. Louis about August 1st, saying that she was going to Hot Springs, Ark., but that instead she came to Ironton, Mo. There is no description of the woman and it has not yet been ascertained whether she really made a visit to Ironton. The families concerned are highly connected in North Missouri, and the facts will probably be learned in due time.
